Introduction

Let's face it, almost everyone dreams of independence and of having the financial freedom to call your own shots, make your own choices, do what you want, when you want and enjoy the personal fulfillment of knowing what you want, when you want and a secure future for yourself and your loved ones through business ownership.

The problem is that in order to be successful in business, not just any business will do. The truth is that you must begin by choosing the business that is right for you: a business that allows you to leverage your individual strengths & talents and allows you to do what you love and focus the majority of your time and attention where you are most interested, skillful and passionate.

A business which excites you and ignites you each morning; a business in which success and achievement is defined by more than just money & finance.

Failing to do this has disastrous consequences. Because you'll be focused in areas you are less passionate and skillful, the quality of your work will not be what it must be, your results will suffer and your business will falter. You'll be miserable and frustrated by doing work you don't really enjoy and you simply will NOT be able to sustain and focus the mental energy and enthusiasm necessary to do what it really takes to succeed.

Beginning with my first entrepreneurial endeavor at the age of 13, I've been building successful businesses for more than 40 years; have compiled a portfolio of more than a dozen successful ventures in a broad array of markets generating hundreds of millions of dollars in revenue and fantastic returns for investors.

I've learned a thing or two about success in business and how to achieve it.

In this report, I provide important and valuable insights to the trends and circumstances which influence entrepreneurial opportunities and reveal the best, most viable, business choices for you to consider right now.

I'll also share the information you must have to choose a business that is guaranteed to deliver the personal fulfillment, the lifestyle and the financial rewards you desire.

Ten Terrific Reasons to Start Your Perfect Business NOW

There is no doubt that, throughout the years, business has changed.

- Technology has leveled the playing field between you and well-established big business.
 - The Internet has matured to such an unprecedented degree that literally anyone can start a fast-growth profitable online business at minimal cost.
 - Home-based business has come of age and no longer carries the stigma of being more of a hobby than a business.
- Corporations increasingly outsource key functions to smaller businesses creating an abundance of opportunity.
 - Professional people from all business disciplines accept that the days of corporate job security are gone completely.

According to Dr. Chad Moutray, (former) Chief Economist for the Office of Advocacy of the US Small Business Administration (US-SBA), "statistics paint a compelling picture of just how important small business is to America. They show that small entrepreneurial businesses are America's job-creators, innovators, and the path to mainstream economic activity for all segments of our society".

Here are some other pretty compelling statistics to consider. Did you know that?

- Small entrepreneurial businesses represent 99.7 percent of all employer firms in the nation.
- Over the past decade, small business net job creation consistently grew between 60 and 80 percent.
- Small businesses employ

75% of all private sector employees.

- Small business accounts for over 51% of the US Gross Domestic Product (GDP)
- The US small business economy is greater than the total economies of France, Germany, and Great Britain combined.

And these statistics do not even account for what is probably the single most significant future trend: the arrival of the baby-boomers on the entrepreneurial scene.

So the facts of the matter are:

- There is no better way to secure true wealth and financial security and independence than owning a business
- The single most important factor determining your success is you choosing the right business

There is no limit to what's possible, if you know how to find, build and grow your perfect business.

2011 – Retrospective

It is said that the first step to achieving a goal or getting to a destination is knowing where you're starting. For that reason, it's worth a glance back at what happened in the business environment in 2011.

It would be an understatement to say that 2011 was an interesting year in business.

We witnessed top caliber companies, formerly believed to be too big to fail, file bankruptcy while others like Apple, Google and Facebook have literally exploded in success expanding to new markets and broadening innovative services.

Social media became a driving component of brand awareness and success throughout the business world at all levels and has empowered those who use it to effectively relay information instantaneously around the world reaching more people faster and more easily than ever before.

With unemployment and under-employment remaining high and no relief in sight, more people have forged ahead to create their own opportunities through business ownership than ever before.

In 2011 the top 5 most successful service business were:

- Catering Service or Mobile Food Contractor
- Graphic, Interior, or Industrial Design Firm
- Computer Programmer & Website Design Consultancy
- Bookkeeping & Accounting Services
- Landscaping, Janitorial, or Pest Control Service

And here are the top 5 home-based businesses for 2011

- Freelance Writer
- Blogger
- Craft Sales
- Affiliate Marketer
- House Cleaner

Look carefully. It's no accident that the majority of these top spots are occupied by business owners providing services which support other businesses.

In fact, it's completely predictable.

As more and more people exit the work-force (voluntarily or otherwise) and embark on entrepreneurial endeavors, there is increasing demand for the specialized expertise, service and support these people provided companies as employees.

This trend promises to grow aggressively as we look ahead to 2012.

More and more people will join the entrepreneurial world with new and innovative ideas to start a small business. Even more retiring baby-boomers will exit the corporate world and will begin working for themselves.

As these trends continue, driven by these growing vacancies, there will continue to be growing corporate demand for products and services to fill them.

AND...

There will continue to be growing entrepreneurial demand for products and services that empower and equip these emerging enterprises to succeed.

Here are some of the best industries to begin a business in 2012 according to INC.com

- Candy
- iPhone Apps
- Health Care Technology
- Beer, Wine and Liquor Wholesale

- Software as a Service
- Home Health Care
- Yoga Products and Services
- Technical and Trade Schools
- Fast-Casual Dining
- Green Construction
- Niche Consulting
- Educational Technology
- Temporary Staffing Firms
- Government Services
- Accounting Services
- Repair Services
- Self-Improvement
- Energy

Our research indicates that these industries will continue to generate the most viable and sustainable growth business opportunities for the next 5 years.

To help you capitalize on these industry trends, I've prepared a look ahead at some of the best business ideas for 2012.

Best Business Ideas for 2012:

CONSULTING

Consulting is unequivocally one of the fastest-growing professions available to you and is expected to continue to increase by 5 to 7 percent through 2016. With cost cutting reorganizations and layoffs throughout the corporate world, savvy 'former employees' can repurpose and remarket their skills and, as a consultant, capitalize on one of the most rewarding, fulfilling and lucrative professions available.

Becoming a consultant is relatively easy and requires no 'certifications', 'endorsements' or 'sponsorships'. The fact is, every reasonable successful career professional knows (how to do) something that others, whether corporate giant or indi-biz-owner, will value enough to pay handsomely for. In addition to the skills you've honed throughout your career already, if you look carefully there are loads of areas in high demand now.

For example, with the downturn in the economy individuals and businesses alike are seeking the expertise of trusted financial advisors to help find saving and investment opportunities as well as minimize losses.

Public relations services are another area in demand. With the surge in lawsuits, companies are looking for people to help them be proactive and be on the forefront to protect the company.

In this era of constant communication, companies are always seeking new ways of getting their voices and messages heard. Local businesses are always looking for knowledgeable professional who can help them take advantage of the latest online or mobile marketing and customer care innovation.

COACHING

Coaching is a rapidly growing profession. Americans spend billions of dollars each year on self-improvement products and services provided by any number of coaching specialists and that number escalates exponentially as you expand your delivery to other nations around the globe (particularly Africa).

All over the world, people regularly invest large sums of money to attend motivational seminars, networking events, purchase instructional books, DVDs and audiobooks on countless topics.

Video and webinars on the Internet has expanded your reach globally and the possibilities are limitless.

Examples of coaching include: Life coaching, small business coaching, a spiritual coaching, meditation coaching, wellness coaching, and on and on and on. Any area in which you have expertise and real life experience to share there is more than likely someone who is seeking that guidance. As a career coach, for instance, you might help people determine the most ideal path for their professional lives. You might then craft strategies for your clients to secure their perfect career within a company or help them climb the corporate ladder into their goal position.

The bottom line is that with the growing access to information and opportunity, comes complexity. Where there is complexity, people are increasingly looking for coaches to help them sift through it and achieve their goals in life.

HEALTH INSURANCE CONSULTANT

One of the 'hottest' topics in 2010 and 2011(here in the U.S. anyway) is 'health care'. It seems an industry ripe with opportunity for someone who can navigate the mind-boggling complexity of care plans and public and private coverage options.

As a Health Insurance Consultant, you could work with small businesses that cannot afford human resources and are not knowledgeable enough about the insurance industry. You could apply your career experience in the health insurance field to help companies and/or individuals wade through the often confusing barrage of information and provide consulting services to help them choose the most appropriate health plans and premiums.

As long as you are not actually selling the health insurance plan directly, you do not need to be licensed to be a health insurance consultant.

ADVERTISING and SOCIAL MEDIA

Today, it is no longer sufficient to just have a website to promote a business. Businesses need to become active participants in the ongoing online community and conversation with their prospects and customers. In order to compete these days, it is imperative that businesses have a social networking presence. This includes Twitter, Facebook, LinkedIn, and other social media sites to share information and events concerning a business. This creates an extraordinary opportunity for you and could be a great new business.

Advertising and Social Media have become one of the most important components of a business' marketing efforts in society today. By helping businesses integrate social media into their other marketing campaigns, you can become invaluable to organizations.

We have helped more than one upstart indi-entrepreneur build multi-million dollar enterprises which manage the entire social media interface for dozens of companies around the world.

NETWORK MARKETING

Network marketing or MLM distributorships were very big back in the 1980's and are making a comeback in a massive way. When people can't rely on companies for job security, Network Marketing companies allow you become an instant entrepreneur. This is by no means a get rich quick opportunity though; far from it. (And, if anyone tells you it is RUN to the nearest exit)

The good news is that as a network marketer you have the opportunity to make money the very first day. You can start by working with friends and relatives in order to build a client base and grow your business and gain some initial momentum.

However, it is still a business and you must work it accordingly. Network marketing, just like all businesses, require dedication, consistent effort and diligence in order to grow and become successful. Don't be enamored by the pool-side images of effortless 'mail-box' income. You're going to need to work consistently for a couple of years to get it going.

The advantage of Network Marketing is there's relatively low cost of entry with a built-in business plan, product and support system. If you're brand new to running your own business, this could be a great way to start developing the skills you'll need to become your own boss.

There are a multitude of products and services available for network marketers such as, communication services, Internet access, nutritional products, weight loss programs, water filtration systems, financial programs, electrical power, solar power, and many more.

If you're good with people, like to socialize, network and share with others, there may be a terrific opportunity for you in Network Marketing or Direct Sales.

INTERNET AFFILIATE MARKETING

Internet Affiliate Marketing is a good online business opportunity that you could start with relative ease. You don't need to have your own product or service to sell. You would be promoting other people's products and services and earning a commission for sales generated from your affiliate links. Internet Affiliate Marketing is essentially a "referral" business in which you recommend products and services through email, social networking sites and blogs.

It can also be a great source of "supplemental income" and a way to start making money online on a part-time basis that you can grow into a fulltime enterprise.

We've helped thousands of people build extremely successful Internet Affiliate Businesses, which generate millions of dollars in revenue.

Almost any product available on the Internet can be sold through an affiliate program of one kind or another.

Insurance companies, credit card companies, companies and individuals who offer information products like eBooks and instructional videos, Amazon, Yahoo, Barnes and Noble, etc. all have affiliate programs through which you can generate a surprising amount of revenue and income.

To get started, make a list of your hobbies, interests and passions. Browse to Google.com and search for each of them. Note how many results you get. Just think, you and your affiliate product could be one of those moneymaking results.

BLOGGING/WEBPRENEUR

Blogging is a business model for people who enjoy communicating to the world about a particular subject or subjects through the written word or video. Blogs are also considered journals where people write about their personal life or about a particular subject. Note: Writing about a specific topic that appeals to a targeted market has a higher chance for financial success.

The key to becoming a blogger/webpreneur is to pick a subject you know a lot about or about which you have strong opinions. The trick is to drive traffic to your blog and turn visitors into passionate followers.

To do this you must create a website with good SEO (Search Engine Optimization), add plenty of relevant and original content. Then... promote, promote, promote! With a strong subscriber base, you can use your site to create income through affiliate programs, selling advertising and even packaging your posts into products.

The range of topics is virtually endless – parenting, business, photography, sports cars, health, dieting, star gazing, the latest gadgets or technology, Hollywood gossip, you name it. You will find that almost every coach, consultant, as well as many organizations have some sort of blog or article section on their site.

ARTICLE WRITING / GHOST WRITER

Article Writing or Ghost Writing is very popular and can be done from the comfort of your own home office (or pretty much anywhere else you want to be). There are many business owners in need of this service simply because they are too busy with the day-to-day responsibilities and activities. These business owners are not able to keep up with creating, or even begin developing content and articles for their websites and marketing materials.

If you have strong writing skills and a passion for it, offering your services as a professional writer could be a great fit for you either as a full-time pursuit or as a supplemental source of income. Besides, just think of all the interesting information, products, and programs you could learn about in the process.

COPYWRITER

If you have a website, you understand the need for a consistent flow of fresh content (e.g., page text, blog posts and press releases). Not only should it be fresh, but also relevant, engaging and optimized to attract the right online readers.

Because Search Engines are so vital to growing businesses, there is an astronomical demand for skilled copywriters. Most businesses and business owners don't have the resources to hire a full-time copywriter nor do they have the time to devote to the generation of new copy themselves. Therefore, businesses are in need of outsourcing this kind of work to skilled writers and writing services in order to meet demand.

I routinely pay thousands of dollars per page for promotional “copy”. If you like to write, it could be as simple as letting others know you're available.

DESKTOP PUBLISHING

Here's one for the computer savvy. Are you skilled with, or do you have a desire to work with words and design? Are you proficient in software programs such as Microsoft Publisher, Microsoft Word, PowerPoint, Photoshop or Adobe Illustrator? If you have good design sense and are familiar with these products you may consider developing a service business in Desktop Publishing. Companies both large and small are always in need of great marketing materials both for print, such as flyers, business cards, pamphlets, etc. as well as for the web, such as graphic images, PDF's and Power Point presentations.

WEB DESIGNER

There is no question that we are in the digital business age and the impact of the Internet on small business has been profound in the best sense. The Internet allows the small business to grow far beyond their local communities and reach new customers worldwide. The Internet has also leveled the playing field when it comes to competing with larger companies and with businesses across the globe.

With this new opportunity, however, comes an ever-increasing need to make a great first impression and this is where the web designer comes in. You have the power to help businesses put their best face forward to make a big impact in this global arena. If you are looking for a work-from-home business, web design services could be a great option especially if you have computer skills, knowledge of HTML, CSS, or something even more advanced like JavaScript.

COMPUTER MAINTENANCE

Many of the last several options I've mention are Internet based and the vehicle most of us use to travel the online superhighway is the computer. I'm sure I don't have to tell you that this "vehicle" has a tendency of breaking down. Computer repair and maintenance are a fact of life today and this presents a major opportunity. If you have a technical background, this can be a great choice for a startup business.

With the rapid increase and development of computers, laptops, laptop tablets, online readers and smart phones, there is an increasing need for good, reliable computer services that include maintenance, repair, clean-up, anti-virus software installation and software upgrades and installations. There are also the peripherals like printers and scanners that you might include in your repair and maintenance services.

Often, the services provided by the big-box stores where many people purchase their computers come at an extremely high cost and their customer service is usually not up to the standards people desire. Where there is a need being inadequately met there is opportunity.

VIRTUAL ASSISTANT

Those with experience in administrative positions have a terrific opportunity to create a home-based business. All businesses and business owners have tasks and projects that need attention every day, such as the monitoring of email accounts, follow-up with customers, development and maintenance of websites, shopping cart management regarding sales of products and services, the invoicing of customers, bill payments, transcription, bookkeeping, typing and proofreading, setting up conference calls, and more.

Business owners may not have the time to tend to these tasks and they may not have the budget to hire a full-time employee to tend to them either. This presents a terrific opportunity for the Virtual Assistant. Working out of their home the virtual assistant can support the needs of many clients who need to outsource these services. If you have a background in administrative work and want to work for yourself, this might be a perfect opportunity for you.

As a Virtual Assistant you can choose to specialize in a specific area like web design, graphic design, social media, email and list management or you could be a catch-all or a 'jack of all trades' so to speak.

ERRAND AND PERSONAL SERVICES

Speaking of the lack of time: With the hectic lives of people in America getting busier and busier, many do not have time to run their daily errands or to go shopping. If you happen to love shopping, as a personal shopper, you could turn your favorite leisure activity into a business opportunity. A service that runs errands (including dropping off dry cleaning, paying bills, grocery shopping, etc.) simply requires a car, cell phone and a willingness to be on the go for your clients.

This career would be especially lucrative during the holiday season. Many people are looking for trustworthy and dependable individuals who can take care of their everyday needs.

The single most important factor determining your success is you choosing the right business. Find out how here.

ORGANIZER

It is probably safe to say that people these days are just simply overwhelmed with all of the 'stuff' they have and do not know where to put everything. People simply just do not have time to organize what they have or do not have the ability to create a strategic organization of their wardrobe, their home office, their kitchen spaces. In most cases, people know they need to organize their lives but the task just keeps getting pushed to the bottom of the list. If you like to organize and create order out of chaos, then starting an organizing business could be for you. And when you start this business, please call me.

SECOND HAND/CONSIGNMENT STORE

Renew, reuse, and recycle. Because of the economy, people are choosing to be more frugal with their purchases, including clothes and household items. This is where second hand or consignment stores are coming in handy. This is quite possibly one of the best business ideas for 2012.

Consignment shops sell clothes, furniture, decorative items, and home furnishings, as well as refurnished items. If you have a knack for refurnishing furniture or other household items, this could be a great business for you. You could make money while doing something you love.

Another option, if you are not ready to rent space for a consignment store you could sell your items online. A popular website that caters to selling handmade and cleverly restored / recycled items is etsy.com or eBay for that matter. Frugal is cool these days and tapping into that trend could be quite lucrative.

GREEN ENERGY PRODUCTS and SERVICES

With the current wave of 'going green' there are constant improvements in the way we do things. The opportunity to build a more efficient and sustainable mousetrap is waiting around every corner. There are entrepreneurial opportunities in nearly every industry for those who are willing to push boundaries. The household use of all natural products, green products, energy efficient light sources and appliances as well as fuel-efficient vehicles increase by the year becoming more popular and more accepted by masses. Capital is king in this pursuit but for someone who has a bright and fresh idea, going green can bring the green for those willing to take a risk.

RECYCLING

Continuing on this same path of sustainability as it relates to opportunity for 2012, let's focus in on recycling. Now, you may think we are talking about regular old recycling here (e.g., aluminum, paper, cardboard) but this is a whole different ball game. Here, I am talking about recycling computer parts, printer cartridges, steel and copper. These items are worth more than ever today and if you can develop a niche in this area, you can create a great supplemental income. To start a recycling business such as this you would need a truck or trailer to haul the items and some good marketing materials.

HOME DAY CARE

If you enjoy children and working from home, running a daycare service is a great way to earn an income. In most states you do not need a license to run a day care as long as you keep the number of children below a certain number. In many households, both parents need to work, so offering a home-based daycare is a great option for families with young, pre-school age children which would allow one parent to stay home yet generate income.

CLEANING SERVICES

This 2012 opportunity also relates to the busy lifestyle of the American household. Many people are quite happy, if not eager, to delegate a task like cleaning. This opportunity extends beyond the household however. Cleaning business spaces or even cleaning new construction homes are great options. This profession generally can earn $30 to $40 per hour. This is a great profession no matter the economic climate, as people and companies are always looking to outsource cleaning services.

PET SITTER/DOGGY DAY CARE

According to the American Pet Products Association, people in the U.S. spent more than $50 billion on their animals in 2011, which is a record. Do you know what this means for the four-legged friend entrepreneur? Opportunity. There are many people who work outside the home that have pets and love the idea of taking their dogs to a doggy day care or even a pet sitter. This could be a great supplemental income for the right person who loves animals. If you love animals, are reliable, organized and trustworthy, there's no shortage of work for you.

PHYSICAL FITNESS and ATHLETIC TRAINER

Now more than ever people are trying to stay fit. We're living longer now and people understand the need for maintaining our bodies. Offering services as an athletic trainer is a way to provide services to this ever-increasing segment of the population who desire to be healthy. You can offer these services at your home or offer to make house calls.

If you are passionate about a sport and would like to provide training to kids of every age, you could find big opportunity here. Competition for scholarships and the attention of collegiate talent scouts bring out the competitive nature and the wallets of parents who are looking to give their athletic children an edge. Make a name for yourself here and you could knock it out of the ballpark.

In Summary –

We are clearly entering into a period of vast entrepreneurial opportunity. This report provides an overview of just a few of the many high-growth business opportunities available to you in 2012. What's important, though, (with the economy in this condition) is that you avoid mistakes, make the right choices and bypass the frustration and expense of trial and error, guesswork and failure.

Whenever you get a glimpse behind the scenes of those who are truly successful at their chosen profession, you discover the secret to their success lies in their ability to discover their strengths and to organize their lives so that these strengths can be applied daily.

So, before you get underway in ANY business endeavor, it's critically important that you follow the clues left by success icons that have journeyed before you and think through this aspect of your business to choose wisely. Be clear about the aspects of the business you're best suited for and have a plan for how you'll have the remainder addressed.

If you've already started your business, it's important for you to stop and take inventory of your role in your business and determine where you may be losing success energy and momentum as a result of this error. It's never too late to recast these roles to get this part right.

Building and growing your own business requires dedication and a deep passion for what you are doing. It won't always be easy, but if you'll take my advice and invest the relatively small amount of time and energy finding the right business for you, the rewards, monetary and otherwise, will be immeasurable.

There's a big disconnect between the abstract idea of following your bliss and the often painful reality of starting and successfully operating a new enterprise.

Most want-to-be and early stage entrepreneurs don't really know how to go about finding, building and growing a business that they will really be successful with and the majority of the training and resources available these days don't actually provide the practical and actionable information they need.

The internet and late night TV are full of “gurus” and snake oil salesmen, making over the top promises of untold riches with very little time and effort invested. Most of which skip past the most vital success steps all together and are designed primarily to separate you from your hard earned savings more than help you build a sound business

If you’re looking for actual, step-by-step help finding, building and growing a business success that you’re really passionate and excited about, help from someone who has done it a dozen times and grown businesses from scratch to over $100 million a year, then I’ve got something you’re definitely going want to get your hands on.

You’ll learn how to discover, then leverage, your strengths and passions into a business that you actually want to work at daily - a business that isn’t separate from the rest of your life but actually serves it. that you should just give up and “play it safe” like you’ve always been taught to do.
